"Your people will be surprised next year at the number who will attend these events," continued the writer. "I know of several prominent people who will come all the way from California, Oregon, and other far Western States, and who will spend the entire time with us in Gainesville. By their visit it is possible that we may gain a few permanent residents, as the eyes of the people of the West are now on Florida, with Gainesville as a center."

The recent heavy rains have filled up the flat woods and put every creek to running. It did quite a lot of damage to the cotton crop that was open, causing it to sprout and rot in the bolls. About one-fifth of the crop was considered opened and had not been picked out. Cotton pickers are very scarce in this district owing to the public works that are being carried on in the county, paying better wages than can be made picking cotton.

UNIVERSITY LOCATION GOOD

Land is High and Rolling and Must Necessarily be Healthy—Dr. Sledd Came to Consult With Prof. Conner on Experimental Farm.

Dr. Andrew Sledd of Lake City, President of the University of Florida, was among the prominent arrivals at the Brown House yesterday.

Dr. Sledd came by appointment to meet Professor C. M. Conner, professor of agriculture of the University, who has been absent on his annual vacation for the past thirty days. Prof. Conner was expected on the noon train from North Carolina, where he has been sojourning, but failed to come. Dr. Sledd was naturally disappointed, inasmuch as he was compelled to leave on the 2 o'clock train for Jacksonville, but he made a survey of the situation here and left instructions for Prof. Conner to go over the grounds intended to be used for an experimental farm and report to the joint board at its meeting in Jacksonville on Monday.

The object of this visit was for Dr. Sledd and Prof. Conner to jointly make a thorough investigation and look over the situation with reference to locating the experimental station. After it was ascertained that Prof. Conner would not arrive until the evening train, President Sledd reviewed the situation himself, leaving definite instructions for Prof. Conner.

Dr. Sledd stated that the more he saw of Gainesville and its people and the new University grounds, the better he was pleased. He believes no better grounds for the purpose could have been selected in Florida and feels that the new University is going to prove a big success from this standpoint. "The land is high and rolling and must necessarily be healthy," he remarked. "I am quite sure that no better selection for university purposes could have been made anywhere."

Large Flow of Water.

Alderman H. E. Benson is one of the happiest men in the city over his efforts to secure a greater supply of water at the waterworks springs, and the people will rejoice with him, for if his endeavor proves lasting, it will be worth a vast sum to Gainesville. He informs The Sun that he has struck a stream of the same pure water as the old spring thirteen feet from the reservoir with a pressure of twenty inches. A pump was attached and after six hours' pumping at the rate of seven thousand gallons per hour, the pressure was not lessened in the least. Mr. Benson says there is no doubt of the supply being inexhaustible, and he is being congratulated on all sides over his success. If any one doubts the statement, the pump is still in place to prove the truth.
